

There is every reason to celebrate the 75th anniversary of Social Security, but unfortunately resistance from various forces to social security has lasted more than 75 years and continues to this day—it just changes forms and tactics. Ensuring that our grandchildren have the same protection as our grandparents do today must be one of our goals. Today, I questioned Nancy Altman, the Co-Director of Social Security Works on how we can work together to maintain the essential role Social Security plays in the lives of American families as they face retirement, disability, or the death of a bread-winner not just today, but far into the future. To listen to this questioning, please click here .